The Smart Alec that dandled the freely painted fence at the home of Mr. Charles D. Pearce in West Second street last night deserves a prize package in the shape of a good stiff fine from the Police Judge. Masters Charles and Tom Pearce had nearly completed the painting of the fence but the smartness of some culprit last night necessitates all the work being done over again.

Roy Goings, who says he is engineer of a hoisting engine and working at one of the C. and O. bridges a short distance above Maysville, struck town this morning and after spending a bunch of money in one of the saloons here, so he claims, was badly henton up by the barkeeper. The man was in bad shape and was taken to Dr. Samuel's office, where the wounds on his head were dressed.

CAME TOGETHER

With a Crash and Smashup—Street-car and Two-Horse Wagon Collide

Mr. George Kahler of Germantown drove to town yesterday morning, and after loading his two-horse wagon at W. B. Mathews & Co.'s Sawmill with knock-down hoghead staves, started on his return homeward trip about 10:30 o'clock.

Just as Kahler drove out of Bank street on to Second alongbowed a Westbound streetcar, and, striking the wagon amidsthip, knocked it gaily West and crooked.

Conductor Frank Limerick was in charge of the car, and both wagon and car were on a down grade at the time.

Mrs. John Rudy's horse and a big stone wall on the East side of Bank street obstructed the view, and neither Kahler or the motorman was aware of the proximity of the other until the accident really happened. It was what might be termed an unavoidable accident.

That both men and horses escaped injury was remarkable, the front of the car and the broken wagon being the only damage done by the impact, and fortunate it was, too.

DEATH IN WRONG BOTTLE

Mrs. John G. Conkey Mistook Carbolio Acid For a Tonic—Without Glasses She Got the Poison

Kansas City Star May 30th.

Death came to Mrs. Alice Reeder Conkey, the wife of John G. Conkey, Superintendent of the Geo. B. Peck Dry Goods Company, at 8:10 o'clock yesterday morning, forty minutes after she had taken a dose of carbolio acid from a bottle she mistook for one containing a nerve tonic. For several years Mrs. Conkey has been taking a nerve tonic and a bottle containing it stood in the medicine cabinet in the bathroom of her home, 1001 Linwood Boulevard. Near it stood a similar bottle containing carbolio acid, which had been used as a disinfectant in the basement of the house.

When Mrs. Conkey arose at 7:40 o'clock yesterday morning, she went to the medicine chest and, thinking that she had the bottle holding her medicine, took a draught of the poison. Gasping she ran to her husband's room, but the burning acid strangled her. She was able to say indistinctly, "Dad—carbolio acid—mistake." Then she fell across the bed.

Dr. T. J. Beale, the family physician, who lives at 1201 Linwood Boulevard, was called at once. He arrived five minutes later, but Mrs. Conkey's throat was so paralyzed by the acid that she was unable to swallow antidotes.

Mrs. Conkey was near-sighted and could scarcely see without her glasses. She was without them when she went to the bathroom yesterday morning. Besides the fact that the two bottles were of the same size, the carbolio acid and the nerve tonic were of about the same color.

Mrs. Conkey was 49 years old. She came to Kansas City with her husband in 1882 from Maysville, Ky. There are two sons, George L. Conkey, 23 years old, and Henry R. Conkey, 23 years old. William H. Cox, a relative, who is Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky, will come to Kansas City Tuesday morning from Frankfort.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound in your ears, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; unless a course of treatment is given by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

His Mysterious Malady

Bobby sat up and threw off the Afghan impatiently. "I feel fine now," he said. "I guess I'll go out for awhile." His father shook his head. "Hold on a minute," he commanded. "Where are all those perfectly terrible sensations you had yesterday when you stayed home from school?"

"Oh, well, that was a whole day and a night ago," protested Bobby. "A feller could get well of 'most anything in that time."

"Especially as this is Saturday afternoon," said his father, thoughtfully. "You considered yourself a pretty sick boy yesterday."

"I was," said Bobby. "Gee, I felt something fierce! I never felt worse in my life."

"Then don't you think you ought to be very careful today?"

"If it was going to be anything it would have gone and done it by now," said Bobby. "Besides, I feel swell. I wouldn't 'a' laid down here, only mamma said I had to. I wish I knew what did it."

"What did you do on Thursday that was particularly festive?"

"Well, it was like this," Bobby began. "Nellie Foster she made fudge, and, of course, I got some of it. It was swell, all right, only Billy didn't get a big piece and he whispered that there was too much choc'ut in it. I didn't say a word, but teacher she heard somebody whisper and she said for me to go out of the room and wait downstairs for her."

"I said I didn't whisper, and she said: 'What makes you always take that attitude, Robert?'"

"I said I wasn't taking any attitude—all I had was fudge."

"Then she got mad and sent me home, because she said I was impatient."

"Out in the yard I saw Jimmy. His brother's got scarlet fever and he can't come to school, but he waits for us fellers outside. He had an apple and he gave it to me so I'd tell him something. Susie Herrick said, I had enough of Susie Herrick when she was in my room at school, but Jimmy likes her."

"Was it a good apple?"

"No," said Bobby. "But I wouldn't let on that I was stung, so I ate it."

"Did you go home then?"

"Sure not," acknowledged Bobby.

"There wasn't any hurry. Me and Jimmy went over to the park and I got some peanuts for the squirrels. We couldn't find any squirrels, so we ate the peanuts ourselves. I'm going to plant peanuts and see how they grow. Billy he planted some last year and we watched for 'em to come up and then 'long about July he remembered they were cooked."

"I thought Billy lived in a flat."

"He does, but he borrowed our yard to plant the peanuts. You know that big white house on the corner of aunt Mary's street?"

"Yes."

"Well, who do you s'pose is going to live there? Just Mamie Kelly?" said Bobby, triumphantly. "I 'most fell over when she told me. Gee, she'll be more cancelled than ever when she's got three lilac bushes and a woodshed in her yard."

"You were telling me what you did Thursday."

"Oh, so I was. Well, then I got some popcorn and we went home to lunch and I was awful hungry. I ate a lot and I took three bananas to school, so's I wouldn't be hungry in the afternoon. I was going to give one to Billy and one to Nellie Foster, but first thing I knew I ate them all. I was awful sorry I had when Nellie Foster gave me a big piece of choc'ut cake after school. It was some quashed from her carrying it in a bag, but it was awful good. I got her a ice cream cone, but she didn't want it, and I had to eat 'em both myself. I never seen—saw—a girl that didn't like ice cream before."

"It is rather unusual."

"She felt awful bad about it; she was afraid I'd be mad, specially because they was nickel ones, but I didn't care much. Mamie Kelly gave me two big pickles, but the cones was gone by that time, so she didn't get any."

"But you ate the pickles?"

"Yep, I did," acknowledged Bobby, sheepishly. "But I said 'Thanks' just as Sam came along, and she gave him one, too. Thea, of course, Sam he gave us some choc'ut creams. Say, there's a place he knows about where you can get lots of 'em for ten cents. Gee, they're swell!"

"Were they the best things you had that day?"

"I should say not!" cried Bobby, with enthusiasm. "Why, I had three pieces of strawberry shortcake for dinner."

"Well, perhaps it was the shortcake that saved your life."

"Mamma thinks it was the medicine," said Bobby. "I certainly feel fine now. If I stay here I'll just get weaker and weaker till I can't get up, so I'd like to go outdoors. There's a ball game over in the big lot and I'm to pitch."

"Are you sure you ought to go?"

"Oh, yes. I can't see how it helps any to keep a feller in bed when he gets sick like that without any reason. Anyhow, there's Billy whistling for me."

"All right," laughed his father. "Go ahead, but be careful not to eat any trash today."

Bobby paused a moment at the door.

"Honest, papa," he said, seriously.

"I'm awful careful what I eat, and I don't like trash. Honest, I don't."

PRINCE EDWARD NOW DUKE OF CORNWALL

LONDON.—Prince Edward, eldest son of King George and heir apparent to the throne, who is known in his family circle as "David," is not yet prince of Wales, though his father of course will confer that title on him later. However, the lad became, immediately on the death of King Edward, duke of Cornwall and the possessor of immense landed estates that yield a very large revenue. By statute, the duke of Cornwall is subject to no inhumanity, so the boy could, if he wished, take his seat in the house of lords at once and cast his vote. The duke of Cornwall must be a son of the sovereign as well as heir apparent. Prince Edward, like his father, is having a thorough training in the navy.

ENGLISH EGG TRAIN

Effort to Educate Farmer to Value of Poultry Industry.

Agricultural Organization Society, in Which Agricultural Co-Operation of England Is Focused Is Originator of Idea.

London.—A campaign quite novel to England has started with the first of the English demonstration egg trains. Its official name is the South Wales demonstration train. It bears aloft its title in big lettering and on either side are the names of the two societies which have organized the endeavor. The Agricultural Organization society, in which the agriculturist co-operation of England is focused, is one. The National Poultry Organization society, whence the idea emanated, is the other.

The train is a pioneer. Since the value of co-operation in the poultry industry was discovered requests for depots have come in thousands. In the last six years the society has striven to interest a rather lethargic public and less than thirty depots were started. It is now expected that 100 will be organized before the year is out and this hundred represents only a percentage of eligible localities.

So egg trains can be expected presently to travel east and north as well as west. The train which traverses the south of South Wales is rather like the hare in a paper chase. It drops literature behind it wherever it goes and a large pack, it is hoped, will pick up the trail and follow the lead.

The train is first and foremost missionary. Britain, as well as Wales, is in outer darkness from the point of view of the scientific pouterer, and in his dialect requires above all things instruction in "candling." The charge is that Wales does not know a good fowl when it sees it, which is seldom. It is innocent of the arts of cramming and of trussing even such fowls as it produces. It has yet to discover the value of the breakfast egg, and is totally unaddicted to the necessary precaution of passing each egg in front of a bright light before handing it on to the consumer.

Welshmen are unaware of the discovery, which was well known to Roman poultry keepers 2,000 years ago, that infertile eggs remain "breakfast eggs" longer than the fertile. In short the poultryman's art is in a bad way westward.

The missionary train is modeled exactly on its American prototype. Prairie farmers, hungry for scientific knowledge, flock even from great distances to the stopping places of the agricultural demonstration trains, which are sent out frequently by a scientific government working through scientific institutions. They find on assembling at the siding just what the Welsh farmers in the shires of Carmarthen, Cardigan and Pembroke will find at intervals.

Before their eyes, as the side of the demonstration van is let down, are unfolded the engines of the industry and the finished works of art. The onlookers can themselves pass before the informing flames on the patent lamp eggs carefully selected to exhibit all the vices and virtues of the egg.

The idea of the co-operative depots which the demonstration train is to popularize has already appealed strongly to the Welsh small holders. Enthusiastic meetings have been held and addresses delivered and a mass of correspondence has reached the headquarters of the National Poultry Organization society. So the egg and poultry train is giving its first demonstration in South Wales. The expenses are largely supplied by the money allotted by the government to the Agricultural Organization society, which admirably directs English co-operation from its center at Dacorum, Westminister.

The organizing assistance of the Great Western railway, which has made several attempts to help small holders, has smoothed the working of the campaign. It is hoped that the success of this dashing experiment will stimulate repetitions in other parts of the country. North Wales, too, is in outer darkness, and central Yorkshire is suffering from market difficulties. The American trains of this pattern have wrought wonders. They have brought before the eyes and to the ears of remotest farmers the latest knowledge on the most elemental subjects of agriculture. The South Wales demonstration train is to go a step further. It is to teach the value of a great movement, as well as to demonstrate to eye and ear the advantage of scientific methods. The occasion is new in the annals of agricultural organization in England.

Kissing Is Not Dangerous

Harvard Professor Says No Reason Why Healthy Couple Should Not Indulge in Practise.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard has officially put her O. K. on kissing. Dr. A. M. Worthington of the medical school, an expert on bacteria, not osculation, says that there is no reason whatever why healthy and well intentioned couples shouldn't indulge in kissing to their hearts' content. Incidentally, his statement shatters the theory advanced many times by professors of other universities that kissing is dangerous, because it makes a swap of microbes and illness in one or both parties to the union often follows such diversions. Said Dr. Worthington:

"Kissing harmful? Certainly not! No, sir! There is no possible reason in the world, or proof in the world, why when two self-respecting, wholesome persons meet lip to lip they can't break away without upsetting

SNAKES CATCH RATS

Merchants of Detroit Place Orders for 300 of "Bull" Variety.

Unlike Any Other Member of Rep-tile Family He Inspires Feeling of Affection—To Prove Beneficial in Moral Way.

Detroit, Mich.—A local naturalist has placed an order with a Texas firm for 300 bull snakes, which are to be used to exterminate the rats of Detroit.

When the snakes arrive they are to be given out free to all applicants, with the understanding that the first to come will be the first served.

The snake is a native of the entire Pacific coast country as well as the Lone Star state, but the southern specimen is said to be the best ratter, hence the placing of the order there.

"He will make good, never fear," says the man who has boosted the qualifications of the bull snake. It does not take a matador to put the bull snake through his little stunt. He performs of his own volition and with extreme avidity. All you have to do is to welcome him into your home with average politeness. He will do the rest. Unless some of the rats are sick-abled and indisposed to roam in quest of food he will have them all in a week. Then he can be loaned to your neighbor.

"And right there is where the difficulty of the whole plan comes in. You won't wish to loan him. The bull snake is unlike any other member of the snake family in that he inspires a feeling of affection and companionship between himself and the people he meets, in contradistinction to the loathing and repugnance with which other snakes are regarded."

"Out in the west almost every ranch has its pet bull snake. You can spur the cayuses, cuff the cat and kick the dog, but don't step on 'Bill' or you'll get the dislike of the rancher, for the big serpent is his one best pet. The prime purpose of having 'Bill' present is to keep away the rattlers which he will kill on sight and which will run their fastest to get out of his way, but he soon gets to be one of the family and is treated as such. It is no unusual occurrence to see an eight foot bull snake coiled in a chair at a rancher's table, with his neck stretched over the edge and his head resting on a plate, while his master feeds him tit-bits of meats and pastry. He is sure to be popular in Detroit."

Not only is the advent of Bill supposed to mark the extermination or exodus of the rat, but he is to prove beneficial in a moral way. When you see a bibulous person with disheveled hair quivering in an agony of fear and horror, don't tell him that it is a real snake he sees on the walk. Let him think that he has the "Jimmies." Perhaps it will cure him of the habit.

Several of the big Detroit stores have put in a requisition for a dozen of the bull snakes. The rats are a cause of great monetary loss to local merchants, not only to the grocery and meat man, but to dry goods men as well. Some of the more fastidious rodents will pass up the best new vegetables and even cheese to feed on silk and satins. His appetite is often illogical.

C. Hart Merriam, chief of the Biological survey, of the United States department of agriculture, at Washington, and other eminent scientists in the service are enthusiastic over the try out of the bull snake as a rat catcher in Detroit. Doctor Merriam has written that he is quite familiar with the talent and ability of the serpent and that he is satisfied that the experiment will not be a disappointment. "My only suggestion is a little advice to the ladies to guard their coiffures," he says. "With Bill, a rat is a rat, and hairpins won't stop him."

Cat as Mother of Chicks.

Harrisburg, Pa.—A queer case of foster motherhood has been developed at the home of Lewis Finfrock, Jr., where a cat which lost a litter of kittens has adopted a brood of nice chickens which lost their own mother about the same time.

The cat is unable to call the peeps so that they knew it, but she makes a fair attempt at scratching up food for them, and cuddles them "under her wing."

the bacterial balance. Perhaps the only serious danger springing from such a union would affect the heart only."

Dr. Werthington also ably defended our friends the "microbes," referring to them in other circumstances. He asserted that if bacteria were driven from the land the world would become a desert scattered with the world's dead. Germs are humble in their needs, but stupendous in their life work.

Wage War on Unwashed.

London.—Nothing daunts the London county council. It now intends to enforce the extraordinary power secured three years ago, and hunt out the great unwashed. Its doctors will examine the persons and clothing of the inmates of lodging houses. When it finds either in foul condition it will compel the owner to submit himself and clothing to washing within 24 hours.

KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

Willing to Pay for Rammer.
When the British square at the battle of Abu Klea, in the Nubian desert, was penetrated by the dervishes, one of them attempted to spear a gunner who was in the act of ramming home a charge. The Briton brained the Sudanese, but the rammer head split on the man's hard skull. Next day the gunner was sent for. Mistaking the reason, and knowing from experience that soldiers are charged for government property which they break, he led off with: "Please, sir, I'm very sorry I broke the rammer, but I never thought the fellow's head could be so hard. I'll pay for the rammer so as to hear no more of the case."

They Surely Would.
A little American boy with his father was visiting a market in a Mexican city. He saw a little native girl with a small basketful of red peppers, of which she was eating one. His father was about to say: "She thinks she is very smart," as the son called his attention to it. The boy spoke up quickly, knowing what was to be said: "Pa, would those red peppers make you smart if you eat all of them?" His father replied: "Yes, son."

The Idea.
"Jack sent me a handsome mirror for my birthday."

"Oh, that accounts for it."

"Accounts for what?"

"Yesterday he asked me if a woman ever got too old to be pleased with a looking-glass."

THE RICH MAN'S DREAM.

I have crushed my competitors out,
I have won in the glorious game;
By guile I am hedged all about,
I have wealth and position and fame.

On the labors of others I thrive,
I heed mighty men to my will;
I live on the Riverside Drive,
Stocks tumble whenever I'm ill.

Now I shall be free from regrets,
And nothing may temper my joy,
If my daughter but shuns cigarettes,
And no chorus girl marries my boy!

DELIGHTFUL MUSICALES

The music pupils of Miss Allene Glascock gave a very charming recital Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the First M. E. Church, South. Miss Glascock is one of the very able teachers of the city, and her pupils show the thoroughness of her teaching. The program was varied and entertaining and the friends who had gathered were greatly pleased.

The annual recital of the Maysville School of Music was given at Washington Opera-house last evening, under the direction of the accomplished teacher, Miss Jeula Moore. The very splendid playing of Miss Moore's instrumental pupils attested in the most forceful way her ability as an instructor of the piano—the graceful touch, the technique and the perfect ease of the performer showing plainly that the best of training had been given. In the vocal numbers also Miss Moore's pupils reflected the greatest credit on their teacher.
An appreciative audience was in attendance, and both teacher and the pupils taking part in the recital were heartily congratulated upon the success and the pleasure of the evening's entertainment.

PROF. CLARENCE MARTIN

Popular and Esteemed Principal of
First District School Retires
For a Year's Rest

Twenty years continuous service in the school-room entitles any person to a reasonable respite, at least, from such a brain-fag-ging profession. Of all the vocations, that of school teaching is the most exacting and responsible in the entire catalogue.

Prof. Clarence Martin, who has been the efficient Principal in the First District of Maysville's City Schools for the past seven years, voluntarily retires from his labors and did not present his name to the Board of Education on Tuesday night for re-election.
Mr. Martin has a record of over twenty years as a schoolteacher to his credit. Besides the seven years in Maysville he was Principal of the Dover Public School for a number of years, where he gave eminent satisfaction. No teacher stands higher in the minds and hearts of his scholars, and we will venture to say that no teacher and his human flock of boys and girls ever severed the tender ties of teacher and pupil with any more poignant regret.
Thoroughly capable by nature and his twenty years of experience, Professor Martin lays down the ferule of school discipline and authority with the love, confidence and admiration of all his scholars and school patrons and with the highest praise from those above him in authority.

Professor Martin is a native of Ohio, but has lived so long in Mason county that we almost claim him as one of us. After a year's well-earned rest and recuperation Mr. Martin will further qualify himself as an educator by a post-graduate collegiate course. It is not his intention to quit teaching entirely. Once a teacher, always a teacher, but he proposes to keep in touch with the great cause and may resume the work in a year or so.

He has several fine openings for school employment in other cities, but feels the need of a rest for a while.

Get Men Who Can Deliver Is Griffith's Plan to Win

Manager of the Cincinnati Reds Says Team Must Go After the Enemy and Go Hard

(Copyright, 1910, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

No manager can make a baseball team win, or tell how to win. If a fellow is going to cut any ice he needs ice picks, and the first way for a manager to win is to get men who can deliver, and men of intelligence enough to take care of themselves.

My theories as to what constitutes a winner are the only ones, and I use them in instructing my players what to do. I used them in pitching, and they worked out, and I believe any player will succeed if he follows them.

The first thing to do to win baseball games is to go after any one who does not wear a uniform that looks like yours, and go after him hard. If and every opposing player anything that will make him weaken or show the yellow. Any time I can convince my men that they are going to win, and the other fellows that they are going to lose, I'll win a pennant.

Ninety-nine and fifteen-sixteenths of baseball is courage and nerve. It is more than that—it is what ball players call "guts"—which is courage with aggressive confidence behind it, and any player who has that sort of confident courage is a good ball player and a winning one, even if he boots half a dozen balls a day.

The best system of winning games is to tell the other fellow that you are going to beat him. Tell it to him before the game starts and tell him in a way that will convince him. You cannot convince him unless you believe it yourself. I keep telling them all the time, and I believe it myself until the game is over and sometimes even then.

Go after the game with intelligence and force every point as hard as possible. Run after every ball at top speed and slide to every base as hard as possible. Take chances; any chance to gain an inch of ground or a base. The player who takes chances of hurting himself seldom hurts either himself or his opponent and he will make a weak opponent run away. More players get hurt stopping up on their feet and giving up before they are touched than are damaged in sliding to bases.

Then claim every point and claim it quick. Holler "No, No" real quick and beat the umpires to it on every close play at a base. The umpire may be perfectly honest and square but on a close play the fellow who yells quickest is much more likely to get the decision. I do not believe in lighting umpires or nagging at them. I believe in yelling quickly. Yelling quickly beats yelling loud all to pieces. It is not cheating a bit, but simply protecting yourself on close plays not so much to get the decision yourself as to keep the other fellow from getting it.

These things, together with a little good pitching and perhaps one star pitcher, will win any pennant if carried out correctly and persistently, regardless almost of the mechanical ability of the players on a team.

"Ump's" Joke on Himself.

Umpire Guthrie of the American association tells a good story on himself. "When I was a youngster I thought I could fight," said the ump. "I had whipped a few of the town boys and the promoter of fights wanted me to enter the professional ranks, which suited me exactly. One day he asked me to meet him and fix up the match. We talked the matter over and I sized up my opponent pretty well. Then the weight question came up. The other fellow said he wanted to fight at catch weights. 'How can I make catch weights?' said I. 'I work every day and cannot afford to quit.'"

Ebbets Answers His Critics.

"The purse strings do not need to be loosened if they are stretched wider than most people know," said President Ebbets of the Brooklyn club, in reply to published criticism of his management. "The Brooklyn players are not only well paid, but they have been promised a liberal bonus in the event of their finishing in the first division at the end of the season. They will receive an increase of from 5 to 20 per cent. of their salaries, according to the amount of hustling done by each individual."

How About This, Johnny?

"Don't believe all this bunk you read about the Cubs' inside ball," says "Doc" Casey, the former Chicago player. "Evers and Tinker have just one sign, and that tips off which one will cover second on a possible hit-and-run. This stuff about working with the pitcher is pure bunk."

PIRATE FIELDER WHO HAS FEW SUPERIORS

TOMMY LEACH.

You often hear the "bugs" talking about the greatest baseball player that ever swung a bat. Some say it's Wagner, others say Cobb. In Chicago they'll tell you that Johnny Evers or Frank Chance has 'em all beat. In New York they think Christy Mathewson is it. But while you are thinking of these great ones don't forget that there is a fellow in Pittsburgh named Leach. Everybody calls him "Tommy." He is modest and retiring and doesn't boost himself, but when it comes to playing baseball he's there with both feet and both hands. In making a bluff to beat, thus drawing the third baseman in and smashing the ball over that player's head Leach has no equal. Leach can bat, he can run bases, he can field and knows the inside game. It is doubtful if Pittsburgh could have won a world's championship without Tommy.

BENDER ON WARPATH IN HITLESS RUNLESS GAME

INDIAN TWIRLER SCALPS THE CLEVELAND PLAYERS—OTHER NO HIT, NO RUN MEN.

WITH a warwhoop that could be heard all over the American league stamping grounds and echoed through the camps of the National league warriors, "Big Chief" Bender of the Philadelphia Athletics unsheathed his tomahawk and scalping knife a few days ago and before he was through with his awful massacre the Cleveland Naps were tortured and slain.

All but one of the Naps died three times under the tomahawk. Bender tied them all securely to the stake except Turner, who managed to slip the buckskin thongs and get to first base. Then when he tried to escape Renegades Thomas and Collins of Connie Mack's band captured him and added him to the list of dead.

It was a hitless, runless game pitched by Bender, who is some kind of an Indian. Whether a Sioux, Comanche, Apache, Cherokee or of some other tribe, the Cleveland players agree that Bender fits into the class.

"BIG CHIEF" BENDER.

fication that "only a dead Indian is a good Indian."

It was awful, say the war correspondents, to see such mighty scouts as Lajole, Flick, Turner et al., step up to the plate with war club in hand and try to hit the ball as it sped with the swiftness of an arrow into the catcher's mitt.

Bender has pitched some wonderful games before, but this is his first no-hit-no-run achievement. Not long ago Addie Joss, a long, lanky paleface on the Cleveland team, shut the Chicago Sox out without a hit or run and there is joy in the camp of Comiskey's braves over the slaughter of the band led by "Deacon" McGuire. It was the second hitless, runless game in the American league this season and is taken as an Indian sign—that there is going to be some pitching in the junior organization of big league circles this year.

The first no-hit-no-run game was pitched May 29, 1875, by Mann of Princeton against Yale. The pitchers who have accomplished the feat of permitting no hits by their opponents and the teams with which they played are:

Mann, Princeton; Borden, Boston; Devlin, Chicago; Richmond, Worcester; 3; Calvin, St. Louis; 4; Bradley, St. Louis; Welch, Troy; Lynch, Washington; Keefe, Albany; Ward, Providence; Corcoran, Boston; 3; Mullane, Louisville; Radbourne, Providence; Daly, Cleveland; Clarkson, Chicago; Ferguson, Philadelphia; Atkinson, Philadelphia; Terry, Brooklyn; Kilroy, Baltimore; Van Hatten, New York; Porter, Kansas City; Seward, Philadelphia; Weyhing, Philadelphia; King, Chicago; Tiltcomb, Rochester; Lovett, Brooklyn; Rusie, New York; Stilwells, Boston; Sanders, Louisville; Jones, Cincinnati; Hawke, Baltimore; Young, Cleveland; 2; Irelstein, Cincinnati; Hughes, Baltimore; 2; Donahue, Philadelphia; Thornton, Chicago; Philippi, Louisville; Willis, Boston; 2; Hahn, Cincinnati; Matthewson, New York; 2; Dowling, Cleveland; Callahan, Chicago; Fraser, Philadelphia; Henley, Philadelphia; Dineen, Boston; Smith, Chicago; Lush, Philadelphia; 2; McLean, Rochester; Eason, Brooklyn; Swan, Kansas City; Moriarty, Newark; Pfeffer, Boston; Maddox, Pittsburgh; West, Toledo; Stovall, Louisville; Brandon, Kansas City; Curtis, Milwaukee; Wood, Kansas City; Wiltso, New York, 10 innings; Upp, Columbus; Marquard, Indianapolis; Rucker, Brooklyn; Rhoades, Cleveland; Joss, Cleveland; 2; Hall, St. Paul, and Bender, Philadelphia.

Hit of St. Paul is allowed a no-hit game because it was in the tenth inning that one of the Louisville batsmen got a single and the Colonels won, one to nothing.

Catcher Pat Moran has been sold to the Phillies by the Chicago Cubs. Chicago got him from Boston in the O'Neill-Pfeiffer trade.

GATHERED SMILES

SURE TO TICKLE THEM.

"That's a queer-looking typewriter, Jiggs?" interrogated the friend as he dropped into the workshop.

"Yes, that is one I have just patented," responded Jiggs proudly. "It is sure to have a phenomenal sale among the girl typists of the town."

"What's the inducement—extra stars for kisses and all that kind of thing?"

"No, but over here is a little compartment for harpins, under here is a holder for sachet powder and on the side there is the cutest oil-proof shelf for chewing gum. Talk about genius!"

Philanthropy.

The magnate was fighting extradition.

"I do not want to go back and prove my innocence," he said.

"But why not?" asked the court.

"I am a man of kindly impulses, your honor," explained the magnate, "and hate to deprive anybody of the satisfaction of saying I am guilty. Why, you can't appreciate how they enjoy it!"

At adjournment the court was still thinking.

Disappointed.

Franklin—What makes Spudler look so downcast—the death of his father-in-law?

Benjamin—That is the indirect cause; the direct cause is the fact that his father-in-law failed to disinherit him.

Franklin—Failed to disinherit him? Why, I should think a failure of that kind would make Spudler rejoice.

Benjamin—It would, ordinarily; but his father-in-law left nothing but debts for Spudler to pay.

Different.

"She was very complimentary to me last night."

"In what way?"

"She called me a human comet."

"And you consider that a compliment?"

"Sure; means I'm a hustler."

"Not exactly; she told me yesterday that she had just learned that a comet is composed of millions of feet of gas."

An Effrontery to Economy.

Doctor (to wife of patient)—Be brave, madam. It is my painful duty to inform you that in 24 hours your husband will be no more. He will have passed from this sad world into a better.

The Wife (overwhelmed with grief, but at the same time having regard to expense)—Good gracious! And you have prescribed medicine for five days at least.

Mean.

Irate Barber (to customer, as he seats him in the chair)—You see that guy going out of the door?

Customer—What of it?

Irate Barber—He's the meanest man on earth.

Customer—What has he done?

Irate Barber—Why, the scoundrel sat in my chair for half an hour and never told me he was deaf.

HIS IDEA OF THE GOOD.

She—I wonder why it's called "Good Friday?"

He—Because my mother-in-law died on that day, I reckon.

Variouly Beneficial.

This thing called money, much abused. A wondrous work can do. For education it is used. And stamps out hookworms, too.

In and Out.

Young Professor's Wife—Lysander, you have explained to me several times how the overproduction of gold causes high prices, but somehow I can't get it through my head.

Young Professor—Oh, yes, you can; the passage from one ear to the other seems to be entirely unobstructed.

A Change of Expression.

"Now," said the wily camel of tradition, who, having received permission to put the end of his nose under the tent, had gone all the way and ousted the owner, "I am all in."

"You are mistaken," said the disappointed one. "I am."

The Material Point.

"Every wife ought to know how to make good bread."

"How can she unless her husband furnishes the dough?"

ELUCIDATED.

Have you looked up This chicken hint The cheerful daily Paper print. How on a space Some ten yards square A man can make A fortune fair?

Well, you can make A fortune, too. The way these other Fellows do: Get your old hens— A place to scratch— Then—count your chicks Before they hatch.

THE VERY MAN.

The Japanese Lieutenant—What shall we do, sir. We've just surrounded a bunch of the enemy and they're asking for quarter.

The Japanese Captain—Tell your troubles to the quartermaster.

Impossible.

No one believed him when he said He lived a blameless life; The neighbors could not be misled, Because they knew his wife.

His Business.

"That man you employed to clean your grounds is a sharper."

"Why, I heard he was a very honest sort of fellow."

"So he is."

"Then how on earth can he be a sharper?"

"Easily. By trade he is a scissors-grinder."

A Change.

Mrs. Maxwell—How hatefully Mr. Klearing and his young wife treat Mrs. Joyne! Before their marriage they thought there was no one like her.

Mr. Maxwell—Probably they realize now more fully than they did during their courtship that Mrs. Joyne was their matchmaker.

Modest.

"You say the Boston girl blushed when she admitted that she loved you?"

"She certainly did."

"How do you account for it?"

"I have thought that perhaps it was because she was telling the naked truth."

Very Fitting.

"How appropriate," said Witticus, as he gazed out of the window on the occasion of the recent blizzard.

"What's appropriate?" asked Jonesby, who saw nothing but sleet.

"This," replied Witticus. "The bed of the streets is covered with sheets of ice."

In the Album.

Mrs. Visitant—I never should have known that this was a picture of your husband. How strange he looks!

Mrs. Iousler—Yes, he does look strange and unnatural. I believe he actually tried to obey when the photographer told him to "look pleasant."

NOW THEY DON'T SPEAK.

Miss Antique—Don't you know people are beginning to call me an old maid.

Miss Caustique—Oh! no. They've been doing that for a long time—I guess you're just beginning to hear them.

Alas!

The fair round cheek Gets withered soon; The luscious plum Becomes a prune.

Cold Calculation.

"Going to take summer boarders this year?"

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornucop. "We don't need the money, but it's a good idea to have a lot of folks around to share the mosquito bites and lower the average."

A MINISTER'S CONSTIPATION

Rev. Kemp Tells of His Digestive Troubles and How He Overcame Them—You Can Do So Free.

The lack of exercise in a minister's life makes him very prone to constipation—but for that matter, most everybody is constipated now and then. It is the national disorder.

Many already know that a sure way to cure constipation and other stomach, liver and bowel troubles is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which church people have been buying for twenty years. Rev. R. A. Kemp of Union Sun, Ind., Secretary of the Indiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says in part:

"For years I have been a victim of constipation but I have never found anything to equal Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I also had indigestion and heart trouble. I can certainly recommend it."

It can be bought of any druggist at 50 cents or $1 a bottle. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand, write to the doctor. If you have never used this remedy and would like to try it, send your address and a free sample bottle will be forwarded to your home. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

AWFUL.

Maisie—Was he on his knees when he proposed?

Daisy—No; but he went down the steps that way when papa caught him.

It Made No Difference.

Congressman Ransdale of Louisiana, recently told a story of Alec Trimble, the valet and factotum of a physician in New Orleans, who took a fancy to one of the summer shirts of his master, and finally went and bought one exactly like it. He showed it to his mistress, who said that he had done wrong, as the two shirts might get mixed in the washing; and Alec answered:

"It'd make no difference, missus, 'cause dey's both aliko in size an' price."

The Flannel Shirt Joke.

There used to be a favorite funny paper story about a man who bought a flannel shirt, and every time it was washed it had to be handed down to one of the children until at last the baby was wearing it. Washing flannels used to be a critical task, but now Easy Task soap is used, and it not only does not shrink the goods, but it leaves the garment soft and comfortable as older-down. Easy Task soap is pure, white and sanitary.

Conservation of the Nation's Greatest Asset - CHILD

By MRS. EDGAR A. HALL

AT A PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

IT IS more important for a nation to conserve the physical and mental life of its helpless citizens than to preserve its natural resources. Money expended in the conservation of the child will save money now spent in combating conditions caused by the neglect of the proper authorities to provide instruction for those whose duty it is to care for the children.

The home is the basis of society, and no civic, social or physical betterment can be reached except through intelligent, purposeful effort to raise the standards of home life, of marriage and its duties, of fatherhood and motherhood, and of citizenship. The God-given function of parenthood is the highest, most far-reaching duty of humanity, and the permanence and sacredness of marriage is the foundation of society.

All students of social conditions seeking the cause of crime and disease, trace them to inefficient homes. Money and infinite labor are expended on charity, on the care of defective, dependent and delinquent children, on hospitals, reformatories, orphan asylums and prisons. Practically nothing is done to remove the causes which lie far back of the conditions, and which are largely preventable.

Homes are inefficient because there is nothing in our present educational system to fit young people for wise home-makers. Intelligent parents, broad-minded, public spirited citizens. There is no provision by which young parents may procure the knowledge that is vital for the protection of the life and development of the minds and souls of the children committed to their care. Instinct does not make parents any more than it makes wise specialists in any other branch of work.

The National Congress of Mothers, from whose declaration of principles the foregoing statements are gleaned, is doing practical and efficient service in seeking to reach every home, every parent, and extend a knowledge of child nurture. The congress is strongly urging such provision as will give to parents the knowledge which will do more than anything else to check the evils which menace society.

The terrible death rate among infants can be checked only by giving to every expectant mother the knowledge of what the baby needs in food, sleep, clothing and care. The time has come when every nation, through a special department, should provide the data concerning infants which may be used by boards of health and mothers. The parents' associations and mothers' circles for the study of the welfare of the child in home, school and state should be co-extensive with the schools which the children attend. Study courses and libraries for parents should be provided for every parent's association. As strength is gained by unity of action, those associations should unite in local, state and national bodies in the cause of the welfare of the child, and in diffusion of intelligent knowledge of its requirements.

A thorough knowledge of the child's physical needs will result in the elimination of many diseases due to parental ignorance. A knowledge of the high, holy and pure functions of sex inculcated in the receptive minds of children by parents would go far toward preventing the social evil—illegitimate children, venereal diseases and unhappy marriages. The knowledge of how to develop honesty, reliability, purity of mind and responsibility in children, would prevent much criminality. The laws of health, particularly in relation to food, ventilation and sanitation, if thoroughly understood and enforced, would have a great influence on health of mind and body.

The present methods of caring for the dependent, neglected, delinquent, defective and wayward children are far from adequate. The care of children in individual homes rather than institutions and orphan asylums cannot be too strongly recommended. The group system, with house-mother and distinct family life, has proven most successful in institutions. The placing of wayward children in homes where experts in child care may study and guide them, instead of in reformatories, is now advised by the leading students of sociology.

Study of the physical conditions of the child, which may be the chief cause of moral failure, is highly important. The teaching of speech to deaf children, without the use of sign language, should begin at an early age. The prevention of deafness may be accomplished by segregating the deaf, thus preventing intermarriage and the perpetuation of the defect. The prevention of blindness is possible through widespread dissemination of knowledge as to the cause and means of prevention, with laws regulating the care of children at birth.

Legislation can do much to prevent the causes of unnecessary orphanage by requiring employers to provide safeguards for life and health. At the same time a certain amount of wholesome manual work is necessary and should be a part of the system of education from the kindergarten through every school grade.

Decent housing and sanitary conditions should be mandatory under the supervision of boards of health. No community can afford to keep plague spots in its midst. Playgrounds for children should be mandatory and in sufficient number in every neighborhood to keep the children off the streets. No children should be subjected to the criminal influences that come from association with criminals in courts, prisons and police stations.

Juvenile courts and a well organized probation system should be a part of the system for child care in every community. No child should be in an almshouse, no child should be permanently placed in a family or institution without the authority of the court, and with a record that will make it always possible to trace them. Probation officers should be skilled in homemaking, able to advise mothers in all that goes to make a good mother and a good housekeeper; able to aid in problems of child care and to guide difficult children into safe, wholesome ways of life.

Mothers organized in every nation to study the physical, mental and moral growth of childhood, to study community conditions affecting children with the purpose of making them wholesome and helpful, is the fundamental step that will elevate the standards of marriage, parenthood and home life, and raise the physical and moral tone of the race. This is the laudable work that is being undertaken by the national Congress of Mothers, and great good has already been done along these lines. The annual meeting of the congress will be held in Denver, June 10-15, when problems of child care will be discussed by leading experts. Mothers, teachers and child lovers in general will be welcome to the meetings.

"Yaller."

Some soaps are so yellow that no word describes them so well as the homely old expression "yaller." They are made of cheap grease—often rancid—and lots of rosin is put in to give the soap weight. Add to this the strong caustic and you understand why your table linen rots into holes and your white garments come from the laundry with streaks of dirt ironed in them. Use Easy Task soap—the pure, white, guaranteed soap that is an enemy to dirt and a friend to fabrics.

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irassburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited. What more proof can any one ask?"

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Romance in Arctic Wooing

Sometimes Sultor Seizes Girl by the Hair and Drags Her Home— Eskimos Marry Young.

Arctic women marry young and occasionally several times before they are suited or suit their permanent husbands, says the Pittsburgh Gazette. Arctic courtships are brief and there is seldom lovemaking beforehand.

Usually a bachelor in search of a wife—and Eskimos marry when yet mere boys—goes to the house of the fair one, seizes her by the hair or anywhere else that offers a firm hold, and drags her to his home, she meantime shrieking and struggling as if she were being murdered, while her family gaze indifferently or smilingly on at her courtship. The more high-bred the girl the greater her struggles and outcries and the longer she keeps these up, it being considered the correct thing for her to "carry on" for two or three days, even to the extent of running home after her place upon the Eskimo bench—apportioned among from three to ten families—has been assigned to her.

In addition to his place and its warm skins, her bridegroom often presents her with a new lamp, lamp table and water pail. Although the young husband may be aware that his wife entertains an affection for him, if she carries her observance of her wedding too far he sometimes cuts the soles of her feet slightly so that she cannot run away. By the time her feet are well she is a contented housewife. Occasionally a girl really objects to her captor, when if he will not release her —and a peace-loving Eskimo rarely wants an unwilling wife—the girl learns to endure patiently her fate.

Another way of wooing is to visit the "young people's house" of a village and there select a wife. Each village has such a house for unmarried persons. The youth selects a wife, and if they like each other and their respective parents have no objections, a brief trial marriage is followed by the ceremony of taking home the bride in less violent fashion than by the hair of her head.

Eskimo couples are generally kind and affectionate toward each other, and the wife is usually well treated according to her code. This admits only of entire obedience upon the part of the wife, although henpecked husbands are not unknown. She must submit to being exchanged when her husband and some friend arrange the matter without consulting her, and for as long or short a time as her lord pleases. These exchanges are often arranged for her interest, however, as when she cannot accompany her husband on a hunting expedition and he takes a friend's wife instead, leaving the friend in charge of his own; or when a homesick girl wants to visit her people, when, if her husband cannot take her, some other man undertakes the journey and leaves his wife as hostage. Refractory wives are exchanged also by way of punishment.

An Eskimo always travels with his wife or a borrowed one; therefore, the wifeless plight of our explorers awakens astonishment and compassion. Willing ladies are offered them, one being recommended to Count von Moltke as having "the longest hair in the settlement and a perfectly new foxskin dress," both highly prized possessions in arctic land.

Foll and His Irish "Supporters." The great haritone, Signor Foll, when singing in grand opera in his native city, Cork, had to sing one of his songs from a stage balcony. The arrangements were not very perfect and the manager, fearing the carpenter had not made the balcony strong enough to sustain the weight of the high man, told off two assistants to hold it up from beneath. The lengthy signor was only half through his song when one man said to the other: "Be jabbers, Moltke, this Oltalian is molgthy heavy!"

"Let's dhrop him, Pat; he's only an Oltalian, after all!"

Voice from the signor above: "Will ye, ye devils, will ye?" "Tare-an'-ouns! Pat, he's an Oltishman; hold him up for the loife of ye!"—From "Some Unrehearsed Stage Effects," in The Strand.

THE sum of $50,000,000 is invested in the bill-posting business in America. The average person wouldn't have surmised that there was one-fiftieth of that vast sum in the seemingly little matter of bill-posting. But it's the little things that count.

THE HON. MELVILLE E. INGALLS, railroad boss and magnate, very naturally is in a hurry to come out for the Hon. JUDSON HARMON for President. With HARMON in the White House Wall street could move over and take possession and the railroads could use the Executive Mansion as a tool-house. The people know INGALLS and they know that HARMON and INGALLS are synonymous terms for colossal railroad graft.

WAGES are higher and still ascending; farmers are everywhere prosperous; the unemployed are few and skilled and unskilled labor is in demand; Banks are flourishing; manufacturers are making money; prosperity is general and no great evil confronts the people. Then why the knocker? What business has he under such conditions? He says the cost of living is too high. The cost of living has always been too high for people who would buy more than they can pay for; but, high or low, the cost of living has not yet been found in guilty connection with the Tariff, while the ability of the wage-earner to pay that cost is dependent largely upon the Tariff.—Tarkio (Mo.) Good Soda

There are three essentials in the making of good soda water: A good apparatus, the use of best materials, care and conscience in the making and serving.

Good Soda

Requires far more attention than the general public is apt to surmise—at least, when made with the care we give it.

Good Soda

Kentucky's New State Capitol Building Dedicated at Frankfort

New Building Formally Opened With Elaborate Program-- Three Addresses Are Delivered At the Dedication Exercises--Some Historical Kentucky Facts.

Frankfort.—Every true Kentuckian viewed with heart full of pride the dedication of the new state capitol, for the capitol building of this grand old commonwealth is one of the finest in the United States and stands as a monument to the honesty and integrity of the people who made it possible.

The capitol commission, composed of Gov. A. E. Willson, Treasurer E. Farley, Auditor Frank P. James, Secretary of State Bruner and Attorney General Breathitt, arranged the dedication exercises. United States Senator William O. Bradley delivered the principal address, and short talks were made by Gov. Willson, former Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and Mayor James H. Polsgrove, mayor of Frankfort.

Building Opened for Inspection.

Following the formal exercises the building was opened for inspection by the public. Gov. Willson and the other state officials received during the evening in the governor's reception room.

The members of the 1910 general assembly were all present and the majority of the members of the general assemblies of 1906 and 1908 who appropriated the money for the erection of the building were also present to rejoice with the citizens that so great a work has been accomplished and that no taint of corruption attaches. A touching feature of the exercises was the decorating of the grave of the Rev. J. McCluskey Blayney in Frankfort cemetery during the morning by a committee of the Frankfort Business Men's club, as provided by resolution of that body in recognition of his loyalty to and his exertions in the retention of the seat of government at Frankfort.

The grounds surrounding the capitol were not entirely completed, but the visitors got a fairly good idea of the beauty of the approach to the building when completed.

Some Historic Facts.

On December 6, 1775, Kentucky County was established by Virginia out of Fincastle County. In the spring of 1783 Kentucky was erected into a district and a "Court of Criminal as well as Civil Jurisdiction, coextensive with the district was erected," says Collins, the historian. The first court was held at Harrodsburg the same year.

First Convention in Danville.

The first convention looking to the admission of the district into the Union as a State was held at Danville, December, 1784, and was composed of delegates from each militia company in the district. No definite results were secured, as the Virginia Legislature prescribed such restrictions as were not acceptable to the leaders of the district.

Much political excitement followed, and it was only after seven conventions were held that the eighth convention secured such concessions from the mother state as were acceptable, and called the ninth convention to meet in Danville in April, 1791, to form a State Constitution. Congress having on February 4, 1791, passed an act admitting Kentucky into the Union.

The First Constitution.

The members of the ninth and final convention were elected in December, 1791, met the following April, and formed the first constitution. This constitution was adopted by the people in May, 1792, and Isaac Shelby was elected governor. The legislature elected at the same time met at Lexington in June of the same year and fixed upon Frankfort as the future permanent seat of government. The first meeting of the legislature at Lexington was held in a two-story log house, of which no picture or description is preserved.

The second temporary state house, in which the legislature met at Frankfort in 1793, was for its day a rather pretentious two-story frame residence, the home of Andrew Holmes, who donated the land upon which to erect a permanent building, and who also gave much timber, stone, etc., for the erection of the first permanent state house. (A fairly good picture of which is given herewith.) This building was destroyed by fire in November, 1812, and the second one, which was erected 1814-16 (see illustration), was burned in 1824.

Volumes Could Be Written.

During the years 1827-29 the classical state house recently vacated (and which is shown in illustration) was erected. It was the seventh building used as a state house. Volumes could be written of this grand old building and the happenings within its walls, for the greater part of Kentucky's political history has been made during the three-quarters of a century it had been occupied. Within its walls all of Kentucky's famous men of that time have been heard, and her greatest jurists have handed down learned decisions, many of which have been accepted by the Nation and Sister Commonwealths as the correct interpretation of the law.

Cost Over Two Millions.

The new Capitol building, grounds, electric light plant, landscape gardening and other improvements will cost when completed two and a half million dollars, and there has never been the least suspicion of graft connected with the work.

The building of a new state house commensurate with the wealth and dignity of the Commonwealth had long been considered and discussed at many sessions of the General Assembly, but it was not until 1894, under the administration of Gov. Beckham, that an appropriation of one million dollars was made to begin the work.

The commission, consisting of Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Auditor S. W. Hager, Secretary of State H. V. Mc-

INSIDE VIEW NEW STATE CAPITOL LOOKING FROM HALL OF THE HOUSE TOWARD THE SENATE CHAMBER.

Chesney, State Treasurer Henry Bosworth and Atty. Gen. Hayes, together with Architect F. M. Andrews, decided that the grounds occupied by the old state house were not large enough, or that its location in the center of the city was not a suitable place for the new building.

Decide to Purchase New Site.

Accordingly, in 1905, Gov. Beckham convened the legislature in extraordinary session to consider the matter of a new location. After some weeks' consideration it was decided to purchase a new site at the extreme south limit of South Frankfort, about a mile from the old, and an appropriation was made to buy the forty or more acres selected.

Ground was broken for the new building in 1906, and the magnificent building was completed and occupied in less than four years. It is one of the most complete and convenient Capitol buildings in the country, many persons who are familiar with public buildings throughout the United States pronounce it without a superior for the purposes for which it was erected. The illustrations given herewith furnish but a faint idea of its grandeur, especially the interior views. The view from the front of the hall of the House of Representatives looking toward the Senate Chamber gives but a poor expression of the marble and granite pillars and balustrades, arches and grand winding stairways, which command admiration of all who enter the magnificent vestibule for the first time. The room where sits Kentucky's highest court is a marvel of beauty, but the architect and designer seemed to concentrate the power of his genius when he came to plan and decide upon the furnishing of the reception room assigned to the governor for public occasions. Our illustration gives some idea of the beauty of this room, but it is only to be fully appreciated when seen.

Commodious and Convenient.

The various offices for the departments are commodious and convenient. Nothing that would conduce to the dispatch of business or the comfort of the officials seems to have been overlooked or neglected. After many years of wishing and waiting those who have felt a pride in Kentucky's

HER LAST WORD

"What are you doing now?" cried Mrs. Cozzens with spirit.

And as for William Cozzens, William Cozzens continued to eat his dinner, though in a giddy manner and as one who knows that he is in wrong again.

"I say, what are you doing now?" repeated Mrs. Cozzens.

"Can't you see what I'm doing?" demanded William. "Can't you see that I'm eating?"

"Oh, you're eating, are you?" inquired Mrs. Cozzens, with terrible sarcasm.

"Yes, I'm eating, am I?"

"Oh!"

"Yes! Oh!"

"And what did you move your plate for?" asked Mrs. Cozzens.

"Never mind!" cried William.

"But I do mind!" cried Mrs. Cozzens; "I do mind! And that's the third time this week you've done it, too!"

"Well," grumbled William, "you shouldn't put so much gravy on my plate, and then it couldn't get over on the cloth. That's all I say!"

"O, that's all you say, is it?"

"Yes," said William, with dignity, "that's all I say."

"And you thought I wouldn't see it if you moved your plate over it, did you?"

"Never mind!" cried William again.

"But I do mind!" cried Mrs. Cozzens. "Why can't you be more careful? You are always doing it!"

"O, forget it!" said William.

"But I won't forget it!" cried Mrs. Cozzens. "And here's another thing: You've got to stop dropping your cigar ashes all over the house!"

"Who does?" cried William.

"You do!" cried Mrs. Cozzens.

"I know I don't!" cried William.

"O, don't you?"

"No! I don't! And you know right well I don't!"

"Min!" said Mrs. Cozzens, more sarcastic than ever, "I suppose it's the bird, then! Yes! That's it. It's little Dick! He gets up in the night and opens his cage and gets at your cigars and smokes them! And as he files around, smoking, he drops the ashes! Yes! Flips them off with his little wing! Yes! That must be it!"

"Don't be a fool!" urged William, impatiently.

"No!" cried Mrs. Cozzens, "it's you that's the fool!" And having disposed of that constantly troubled point she returned to her bill of charges. "And here's another thing, too!" she cried.

"When you're through with the newspaper at night, you just fold it up and put it away! I'm not going to run around putting things up after you any more!"

"No?" said William. "Well, well!"

"No!" said Mrs. Cozzens, "I'm not! And the next time you leave your slippers lying around they'll stay there!"

"O!" said William. "Anything else?"

"And the next time you tie a bit of lettuce above Dick's cage just where the little pet can't reach it you'll hear from me!"

"O! I'll hear from you, will I?" said William, and drawing a great sigh he finished his rice pudding and said, "O, well! Perhaps I won't be here long!"

"Trust you for that!" cried Mrs. Cozzens. "I'm the one that won't be here long!"

"No," said William sadly, "I'm the one."

And he fell into a reverie as one who pictures the future, and when he spoke next it was in a very mournful tone.

"You'll look over at my place, then," he sighed, "and there won't be any spots on the cloth. And you'll walk around and won't and any cigar ashes—"

"No?" asked Mrs. Cozzens.

"No newspapers to pick up—"

continued William, sadly.

"Well, well!"

"No slippers—"

"Oh!"

"No bits of lettuce hanging over Dick's cage—no William—no nothing!" And drawing another large sigh, he looked over at Mrs. Cozzens with gloomy satisfaction, as though he said, "Now, what do you say?"

And as for Mrs. Cozzens she gazed back at her William with a look that said, "This is what I say," and just before William went down and out for the full count she cried in a brisk voice:

"William, is your insurance paid up?"

Deposing the Dalai Lama.

In the Imperial Chinese decree deposing the dalai lama appears this curious paragraph: "A-wang-lo-pu-tsang-tu-pu-tan-chin-cho-chia-chal-wang-chu-chlo-le-lang-chieh is hereby commanded to be divested of his title of dalai lama, in order to show penalty. Wherever he may escape and whether he returns to Tibet or otherwise, he shall be regarded henceforth not otherwise than as one of the common people. The residents are commanded speedily to seek among children born with miraculous signs and draw their names by lot from the 'golden urn,' according to former practice. The name drawn shall be created the real hubli han (reincarnation) of the preceding dalai lamas and application shall be made to us for bestowal of a proper title and favors, so that the propaganda of the canons may be perpetuated and due importance may be attached to religious affairs."

Very Fishy.

She was a fisherman's daughter, she wore her hair in a net, and she preferred love in a piscatorial way.

"My love," he whispered, "you hold first place in my heart! Although I founder about in expressing myself, my sole wish is that you will save me from becoming a 'crabbed' old bachelor. I shall stick to you closer than a 'limpet,' from you a 'wink' will be the road to guide me. Together we will 'skate' over life's 'rocks,' and when I look at your hand beside me I shall say to myself: 'Fortune was mine when I put 'herring' there!'"

And then the lady dropped her eyes in sweet confusion, and murmured: "Pass the salt."

A Quick Cat.

Some years ago the proprietor of a hotel in southern New Hampshire told the following story: He said that when he was a boy he had occasion to go into the garret of his house one morning and that the family cat followed him up the stairs. One of the windows was open, and when they entered the garret a frightened mouse jumped out of the window, and the cat, jumping after it, caught it in mid-air and, whirling round, jumped back again into the same window.

The Quoter.

"You never quote poetry in your speeches?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum; "quoting poetry is too often like sending an anonymous letter. A man resorts to it when he wants to say something and shift the responsibility of authorship."

About five years ago my kidneys suddenly became disordered and for several months I was bothered by constant, dull pains across my loins.
